Shelton State and Bibb Medical Center Partnership Strengthens Rural Healthcare

BY CANDACE JOHNSON REPORTER

The Shelton State Community College's Bibb Campus Practical Nursing (PN) Program recently celebrated its third graduating class. A pinning ceremony, held July 31 at Shelton State, honored eight graduates who officially completed the program on August 1. The eight graduates are as follows: LaMonica Sims, Megan Harbison, Erica Epperson, Madison Allen, Lauren Averette, Samyria Simmons, Hannah Blackwell, and Victoria Jones.

With their training complete, these students are now ready to enter the healthcare profession.

The program is the result of a strong partnership between Shelton State Community College and Bibb Medical Center (BMC). This week also marks the start of classes for the next PN cohort: thirteen students selected from a competitive pool of 89 applicants. By hosting the program on BMC's campus, aspiring nurses are able to pursue their career goals with both convenience and hands-on experience.

"Hospital-based cation is crucial because it bridges the gap between the classroom and real-world learning," instructor Kandy Shoults explained. The partnership allows students to apply lessons learned in class directly to a hospital setting, gaining experience in patient care, clinical procedures, and practical nursing skills.

Under the guidance of experienced professionals, students also learn from nurses, physicians, therapists, and other healthcare workers. This environment develops not only clinical professionals.

competence but also interpersonal skills essential to patient care. "This expanding network of education shows promise for our students and the future of rural healthcare," said BMC Chief Operating Officer Camille Gibson.

Healthcare education in Bibb County begins even earlier. Through the Bibb County Career Academy's HOSA program, led by instructors Shoults and Barbara Terry, 33 high school students have the chance to explore healthcare careers at BMC facilities, helping to build a foundation for the next generation of medical

Roads, Revenue, and Responsibility: Hot Topics at Centreville Forum

BY CANDACE JOHNSON REPORTER

The Centreville Candidate Forum was held on August 21 from 6–7:30 p.m., drawing residents eager to hear from those running for City Council and Mayor. Candidates were given guidelines before taking the stage, with three minutes to answer each question and two minutes for rebuttals. Council candidates spoke first, followed by mayoral candidates.

Incumbents included Don Mack, Linda Lawrence, Diane Epperson, and Mayor Mike Oakley. Lawrence, who also works in financial services with H&R Block, emphasized her dedication to public service and her desire to foster unity in the community. Newcomer Reese Lee, with a military and nursing background, called for stronger accountability and improved funding for emergency services. Business co-owner Forrest Murphy stressed the need for responsible growth and infrastructure improvements.

Key issues discussed throughout the evening included financial transparency, drainage concerns, and building public trust. Candidates highlighted the importance of collaboration between the council and mayor in solving these challenges. During the mayoral portion, Oakley pointed to his accomplishments in office, including leading through the Covid-19 pandemic, securing a $2.5 million loan, and supporting ongoing projects such as Main Street revitalization. Challenger Barry Cooner leaned on his business experience, pledging greater transparency and sound financial stewardship. Both agreed that public safety, school improvements, and fiscal management remain top priorities for the city.

Candidates each gave opening and closing statements, sharing their visions for Centreville's future. Those on the ballot

Student Spotlight: Connor and Mullins Shine in HOSA Program

BY SHEILA DUNCAN

REPORTER

The Bibb County School System is celebrating a new class of students stepping into the world of healthcare through its Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA) program. Based at Bibb Medical Center, the program gives high school students hands-on experiences and insight into future medical careers.

This year, two seniors, Aliyah Connor and Alyssa Mullins, are standing out as they prepare for their next steps beyond high school.

For senior Aliyah Connor, the dream of working in healthcare started at an early age. While she once imagined herself as a veterinarian, her interests shifted toward human medicine. Now, she hopes to pursue a path to becoming a doctor, with plans to Senior Alyssa Mullins first joined HOSA after encouragement from friends, but quickly discovered a passion for the field. She is considering a career in Radiology or becoming a Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN). This year, she hopes to gain job-shadowing opportunities and earn college credit through Shelton State.

Capital Lives On in History

Just outside Selma sits a quiet place with a big story—Cahaba, Alabama's first permanent state capital. Once a bustling town along the Alabama and Cahaba rivers, today it is known as one of the state's most famous ghost towns.

Cahaba became the capital in 1820. Lawmakers hoped the riverside location would help trade and growth, but the lowlying land proved difficult. Flooding and disease made life tough, and by 1826, the capital was moved to Tuscaloosa. Still, Cahaba remained an important town for many years, known for its cotton trade, churches, and busy river docks.

During the Civil War, Cahaba housed one of the largest Confederate prisons, holding thousands of Union soldiers. After the war, the town slowly declined, and by the early 1900s, most residents had left.

Today, Cahaba is a historic park where visitors can walk among the ruins of old buildings, cemeteries, and moss-covered streets. It is also known for ghost stories and legends that make it a favorite

Finding God in the Valley of Depression

Depression is heavy. It can feel like walking through a fog with no clear path ahead, or like carrying a weight that no one else can see. For many, it's not simply a passing sadness but a persistent shadow that makes daily life feel overwhelming. And for Christians, the struggle is often compounded with guilt—wondering why we can't simply "pray it away."

But the truth is, the Bible does not hide the reality of depression. God's people have faced it, too.

God's people have faced it, too.

Think of Elijah. After his great victory over the prophets of Baal, he collapsed under a broom tree and prayed that he might die (1 Kings 19:4). David poured out his soul in the Psalms, saying, "Why are you cast down, O my soul? And why are you disquieted within me?" (Psalm 42:5). Even Jesus, in the garden of Gethsemane, confessed that His soul was "overwhelmed with sorrow to the point of death" (Matthew 26:38).

If you are struggling with depression, you are not faithless. You are human—and you are not alone

One of the most comforting truths in Scripture is that God does not abandon us in our low places. "The Lord is close to the brokenhearted and saves those who are crushed in spirit" (Psalm 34:18). He does not demand that we put on a happy face before coming to Him. Instead, He draws near to us in our pain.

Sometimes healing comes through prayer, sometimes through Scripture, sometimes through counseling or medicine. All are gifts from God's hand, and none diminish His power.

Depression can make tomorrow feel impossible, but our hope is not rooted in our feelings. Our hope is rooted in Christ. He is the One who walks with us through the valley of the shadow of death (Psalm 23:4), and He is the One who promises that joy will come in the morning (Psalm 30:5) in the morning (Psalm 30:5).

It may not come overnight. It may not come easily. But God's light is stronger than the deepest darkness.

If you are depressed, know this: you are seen, you are loved, and you are not forgotten. Cry out to God honestly, even if all you can say is, "Help me." Reach out to others who can walk with you. Remember that your worth is not tied to your emotions, but to the One who created you.

And if you are walking alongside someone who is depressed, be gentle. Listen more than you speak. Pray faithfully. Remind them that they are not alone.

The History of "I Saw the Light"

the Light." Written by Hank Williams in 1947, the song has become a timeless anthem of redemption, sung in churches, concerts, and recordings for decades. Its history is both deeply personal to Williams and universally relatable to anyone who has ever longed for hope in the midst of darkness.

Hank Williams, often remembered as one of country music's greatest songwriters, was raised in Alabama by a mother who was deeply rooted in the church. Like many Southern families, gospel music was woven into his upbringing. The inspiration for "I Saw the Light" reportedly came one night while Williams was traveling home from a show. His mother, driving the car, pointed to the lights of their hometown of Montgomery and said, "I just saw the light." Those simple words sparked something within Williams, and he began working on what would become one of his signature gospel songs.

Williams recorded "I Saw the Light" on April 21, 1947, at his very first session with MGM Records. Interestingly, the song was not an immediate commercial hit. Released as the B-side to "Six More Miles to the Graveyard," it sold modestly at the time. Yet the song's message of deliverance and salvation resonated with audiences, and it became one of the most requested numbers at Williams' concerts.

Few gospel songs have crossed cul- in the fact that Williams himself struggled tural boundaries as powerfully as "I Saw deeply with alcoholism, health issues, and personal turmoil. Though he wrote about spiritual victory, he often wrestled with living it out. That tension—the yearning for light while battling inner darkness gave the song authenticity. It wasn't written by someone who had life neatly figured out, but by someone reaching for grace.

Over time, "I Saw the Light" became a gospel and country standard. Artists from diverse backgrounds—ranging from Roy Acuff, Bill Monroe, and Johnny Cash to Emmylou Harris and Willie Nelsonhave recorded it. The song has also been embraced by congregations across denominations, finding a home in hymnals and worship services. Today, "I Saw the Light" is considered not only a cornerstone of Hank Williams' legacy but also one of the great American gospel songs. Its simple yet powerful refrain echoes the message of countless testimonies: that no matter how far we wander, there is always hope when God's light breaks through the darkness. More than seventy years after its writing, "I Saw the Light" continues to shine as a reminder of redemption and grace. Though Hank Williams' own life was marked by struggle and tragedy, the words he penned have brought encouragement and joy to generations. The song endures because it speaks to a universal truth: ev-Part of the song's enduring power lies eryone longs to see the light.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Mental health is an important part of overall well-being and affects how we think, feel, and handle daily stress. Taking steps to support mental health can improve mood, strengthen relationships, and even benefit physical health. Small habits practiced consistently can make a big difference over time.

- Stay connected with friends and family to reduce feelings of isolation.
- Aim for 7-9 hours of quality sleep each night to support emotional balance.
- Practice stress relief techniques such as deep breathing, meditation, or walking.
- Take short breaks during the day to reset and refocus your mind.
